Not aware of how unaware we are holding attention is difficult because of technology

Attention is a limited thing.

we cannot be fully aware of things

We are paying attention to the important things we considered

Nowadays, our reality has been changing because of the existence of kind of magical things that help us to look for information in a quickly way, to talk with people even if they are far WW of us, among another things; this is called: Technology. The use of the technology by humans can have a lot of benefits, but also, a lot of disadvantages. This allows us to wonder: is it X technology so good for us and the new generations?

There is one of the biggest problems that technology brings to human life in all the aspects, and it is related with attention. As a teacher, I am really worried about the news GR generation that are coming, because currently they are growing up since they were bored GR with technology. While they are babies, they watch videos as a way to distract them; then, when they are toddlers, they play with tablets, or cellphones. And of course this causes problems with their attention. We can also see this reality on the example that the girl give GR us: One teacher said that his students couldn't read a complete book in comparison of he GR probably did, and this is due to technology.

Another aspect that is affected because of the use of technology is human's capacity to think deeply. Everyone has technology near, using cellphones, computers, watches, among other things; and in this devices with the use of google, searchers and AIs, people are losing its own capacity to think of WW themselves, with only some touches or clicks they are having the information or solution that they want. To improve this, people can try to reduce the use of technology or decide to made things and the "old way"
